

I came to legal aid to get help with domestic problems I was having with my husband. After going to Help & Shelter they told me about legal aid. Legal aid helped me with getting orders for domestic violence I was experiencing and getting a divorce from my husband.

I found legal aid very welcoming. I had been suffering with some of my problems for years and when I talked to my lawyer, he gave me advice and told me what I could do to deal with my matter. After talking with him I felt safe and such relief. Things would be okay.

We went to court and my husband is now away from me and out of the house. It is much better. I don't have the stress that I had before. My children used to be scared and upset all the time but they are getting better now. They still get upset sometimes, but I am talking and counseling with them and they are getting there. I am getting there too.

Now that everything is over I can finally spend the time I want focusing on my children. I am looking forward to spending time with them and seeing them finish school.

I suffered in my situation for a long time but legal aid finally helped me get out.
